

NATIONAL VALUES AND EDUCATION SYSTEM: INTEGRATION OPPORTUNITIES

Jabbarova Khabiba Kuvandikovna

Samarkand State Institute of Foreign Languages, Senior Lecturer (PhD)

Annotation: In the modern world, with the increasing processes of globalization, the preservation of national values and their harmonization with the education system have become an important issue. This article examines the possibilities of integrating national values and the education system, their impact on the development of society, and the challenges faced in this process. The article examines the methods and results of integrating national values into the education system, as well as highlights the issues of preserving the identity of national culture under the influence of global culture.

Keywords: national values, education system, integration, spiritual and moral education, globalization, global culture, national identity.

It is difficult to imagine the national values of each nation without its history, spirituality, culture, special customs and traditions. Value should be understood as a set of natural and public goods, phenomena of importance to man and humanity, which serve the interests and goals of nations, nationalities and social groups and are valued and appreciated by them [1].

National values are the basic concept expressing the cultural heritage, traditions, customs and spiritual foundations of each nation. The education system is the most important means of transferring national values to a new generation, their formation and development. With the increasing processes of globalization in the modern world, the preservation of national values and their harmonization with the education system are becoming important for the sustainable development of society. Our fathers, along with science, instilled in our children national, spiritual, and moral values that are passed down from generation to generation [2]

The connection between national values and the education system is deep and multifaceted. Through the education system, national values can be conveyed to a new generation, shaped and developed. At the same time, the integration of national values into the education system has a positive impact on the spiritual and moral education of young people. This is one of the key factors in ensuring stability and peace in society.

There are several effective ways to integrate national values into the education system:

The introduction of national values into programs. Modern technologies and software are becoming an integral part of our lives. However, at a time when technology is evolving, it is important to keep in mind national values and cultural heritage. The introduction of national values into programs not only helps to preserve national identity, but also helps to familiarize the younger generation with their culture and increase national pride. At the same time, by including modules on national culture, history, literature, art and traditions in educational programs, it is possible to instill national values in students. This will help the younger generation to foster a sense of respect and national pride.

By integrating national values into software, the design of programs, applications, and websites can reflect national diversity. For example, the introduction of Uzbek national patterns, elements of ancient art, and national colors into the UI/UX design can add personality to the program. In addition, it is important to support the Uzbek language in programs in order to create a favorable environment for local users to support the Uzbek language and dialects. You can also add variety to the program to make it livelier and more interesting.

In addition, the placement of materials about national history, customs and values in educational applications or multimedia programs, as well as the introduction of content about national culture and history, plays an important role in familiarizing the younger generation with their culture. Such materials can be useful, for example, in electronic libraries, historical encyclopedias, games and interactive educational applications.

The software can be supplemented with functions that correspond to local customs in order to adapt to the lifestyle of users. For example, reminders related to national holidays or special dates, temporary changes to the application interface in accordance with national holidays.

If the advertising and marketing materials reflect national values, then user interest in the application increases. For example, you can use images related to national clothing, historical sites, or famous personalities.

Using Uzbek national songs, songs, or music in multimedia applications or games can leave a pleasant impression on users. This not only promotes national art, but also gives the program a personality.

Programs for children and young people can attract their attention and instill national values, including national games, puzzles, fairy tales and fairy tales in applications.

Preserving and promoting national values through programs and technologies is one of the most important tasks for our society. This not only makes technological products unique, but also encourages the future generation to appreciate their culture. If programmers and designers work with national culture in mind, they can provide users with useful and interesting products.

Creating an environment that supports national values. Creating an environment that supports national values is a set of activities and measures carried out to create a sense of respect and pride among young people for their national culture, traditions and values, as well as encouraging them to preserve and develop these values in the future. This process can occur in educational institutions, in the family and in society.

The main directions of creating an atmosphere that supports national values are the formation of a national atmosphere in educational institutions. Let's look at several ways to create an environment that supports national values.

Celebrating national holidays and traditions: Celebrating national holidays such as Navruz, Independence Day, and National Holidays can help spread national values among young people. Traditional games, concerts, exhibitions and other events will be organized during these holidays. Holding events such as celebrating national holidays and traditional art can increase the interest of young people in national culture.

Schools and higher education institutions help young people to study national values through projects related to national culture, such as research on traditional crafts, national clothing, national cuisine and other topics.

Increasing the interest of young people in national culture is possible through broad coverage of national literature, art and music lessons.

Promotion of national values in the family, that is, the preservation of traditional family rituals, observance of national traditions in ceremonies such as weddings, birthdays, family holidays [4].

It is also possible to preserve national culture through joint cooking and eating of national dishes in the family. Parents play an important role in educating their children in national values.

They can tell children stories about national culture, history and traditions, encouraging them to participate in national holidays and events. Since parents communicate directly and indirectly with their children and nourish them spiritually, it is very important, first of all, that they themselves be an example in the process of communicating with each other and try to listen more to their children, improve their speech abilities, and then explain their thoughts, adhering to ethical norms, quoting conversational wisdom, articles, and life stories. examples [3].

It is necessary to develop cultural centers and museums to create an atmosphere of support for national values in society. Cultural centers, libraries and museums will provide assistance in the study of national values by young people through the organization of exhibitions, seminars and events dedicated to national culture.

The promotion of national values through mass media, social networks and other platforms can increase the interest of young people in national culture.

Creating an environment that supports national values is of great importance for the development and sustainability of society.:

Creating an environment that supports national values strengthens the national identity of young people and gives them a sense of pride in their nationality. This helps to form the moral and moral component of youth.

Creating an environment that supports national values is an important means of ensuring that young people understand, respect, and preserve national culture, traditions, and values. This process can occur in educational institutions, in the family and in society. By creating an environment that supports national values, we can educate the future generation as individuals with a strong national identity, spiritually rich and with a broad outlook.

Special teacher training is required to teach national values in the education system. This requires them to have a deep knowledge of national values and the ability to convey them to their students.

The integration of national values into the education system has a great impact on the development of society.

First, it is necessary to strengthen national identity. National identity is strengthened when the younger generation recognizes and values national values. This helps to preserve the uniqueness of the nation.

Secondly, if spiritual and moral education is developed, that is, national values are instilled through the education system, this will contribute to the spiritual and moral education of young people. This is one of the key factors in ensuring stability and peace in society.

In the context of the increasing influence of global culture in the modern world, it is important to preserve national values and pass them on to new generations. This helps to preserve the uniqueness of the national culture.

The process of integrating national values into the education system is fraught with a number of challenges. This is what globalization is affecting. The processes of globalization threaten the loss of the identity of national values. To counter this, it is necessary to convey national values in modern forms to the new generation.

The problem may be a lack of resources and specialists to teach national values in the education system. To solve this problem, it is necessary to allocate resources and train specialists in cooperation with government and non-governmental organizations.

In the modern education system, it can be difficult to develop a methodology for teaching national values and put it into practice. This requires the exchange of pedagogical experience and the development of international cooperation [5].

Thus, the integration of national values into software remains one of the most important ways to preserve national identity in the context of technology development.

In conclusion, it can be said that the integration of national values into the education system is essential for the development and sustainability of society. During this process, the understanding, respect and preservation of national values for the younger generations will be ensured. At the same time, the integration of national values into the education system helps to resist the processes of globalization. However, for the successful implementation of this process, it is necessary to develop sufficient resources, specialists and methodologies. By integrating national values with the education system, we can raise the future generation as spiritually rich, with a strong national identity and a broad outlook.

References:

1. Qadriyatlar va ijtimoiy taraqqiyot (ilmiy ishlar to'plami). –T; “O‘zbekiston”, 1997. B.198;
2. Jalolov H. Oila, mahalla va maktab hamkorligi. Tarbiya. №2 (6), 2006. B.13
3. Фармонова М. Қадриятлар–маънавий камолот асоси/ Илмий-услубий қўлланма. – Тошкент: “Tasvir nashriyot uyi”, 2019, 36 б.
4. Jabbarova X. Milliy va umuminsoniy qadriyatlarning gender tenglikka ta'siri //Innovation: The journal of Social Sciences and Researches. – 2024. – T. 2. – №. 2. – С. 73-75.
5. Djabbarova H. Use of feminism in modern philosophy //Thematics Journal of Social Sciences. – 2023. – T. 9. – №. 1.
6. Jabbarova H. Philosophical concepts of masculinity and femininity in ancient philosophy //International Journal of Engineering Mathematics (Online). – 2024. – T. 6. – №. 1.