

DEVELOPMENT OF INTER-ETHNIC RELATIONS IN NEW UZBEKISTAN

Mamatov Mamadjan Ahmadjonovich

Professor, Doctor of Philosophy, Fergana State University

Mallaeva Shohida Muqumjon kizi

Fergana State University, 2nd year master's student, majoring in teaching methods of social and humanitarian sciences (spiritual foundations)

Annotation

The development of inter-ethnic relations in the living tapestry of cultures that make up Uzbekistan is the cornerstone of building a harmonious and inclusive society. Under visionary leadership, New Uzbekistan has made significant strides in fostering unity and diversity among its diverse population. This article examines the main aspects of the development of inter-ethnic relations in the new Uzbekistan and highlights the initiatives taken to develop mutual understanding, tolerance and cooperation between different ethnic groups.

Key words

international relations, communication, society, culture, education.

Introduction

One of the main pillars of New Uzbekistan's approach to inter-ethnic relations is the promotion of diversity and inclusiveness. Recognizing that cultural wealth is a source of strength, the government has implemented a policy of honoring the unique heritage of each ethnic group within the country. By embracing diversity, Uzbekistan aims to create a society where individuals can express their individuality freely and where differences are seen as opportunities for learning and growth. Education plays a crucial role in shaping attitudes and perceptions towards different ethnic groups. Educational reforms aimed at developing intercultural understanding and appreciation have been implemented in new Uzbekistan. Now, schools and universities are introducing multicultural education into their curricula, teaching students about the history, traditions and customs of different ethnic communities in Uzbekistan. By equipping the young generation with knowledge and respect for diversity, Uzbekistan is creating a foundation for a more tolerant and inclusive society.

Literature analysis and research methodology.

Cultural exchange programs act as a bridge between different ethnic groups, promoting communication, cooperation and mutual understanding. Cultural festivals, art exhibitions and music performances in Uzbekistan provide an opportunity for people of different nationalities to come together and celebrate their common heritage. These initiatives encourage cross-cultural interactions and foster goodwill between communities, breaking down barriers and stereotypes that can divide them. A strong legal framework is essential to protect the rights of ethnic minorities, ensure equality and non-discrimination. New Uzbekistan introduced anti-discrimination laws and policies to protect the rights of all ethnic groups in the country. Upholding the principles of fairness and justice, Uzbekistan is creating a legal environment where individuals can live and work without fear of prejudice and bias based on their nationality is essential for building trust and cooperation between ethnic groups. New Uzbekistan encourages public participation in local initiatives and projects, creates spaces for dialogue, cooperation and conflict resolution. By engaging communities in the development of policies and programs that affect them, Uzbekistan is empowering its citizens to work together toward common goals and the common good is the key to building strong relations between ethnic communities. In Uzbekistan, there are platforms for inter-ethnic communication such as forums, roundtables, public meetings, where individuals can express their opinions, exchange experiences and find a common language.

By developing communication and mutual understanding, Uzbekistan is creating a culture of communication and respect that transcends ethnic differences. Economic development plays a crucial role in improving inter-ethnic relations by reducing socio-economic differences and promoting common prosperity. New Uzbekistan invests in economic opportunities for all communities, ensuring that every ethnic group has the resources and support they need to thrive. By creating an environment where everyone can participate in the economy and benefit from its growth, Uzbekistan is laying the groundwork for a more just and inclusive society.

Discussion and results.

Inter-ethnic relations in the new Uzbekistan have developed significantly in recent years, with efforts aimed at promoting diversity, tolerance and mutual understanding among the country's various ethnic groups. The government's focus on strengthening feelings of unity and solidarity among the population is evident in various policies and initiatives aimed at strengthening inter-ethnic relations. The new Uzbekistan recognizes the importance of accepting diversity as a strength rather than a source of division. Policies aimed at celebrating the cultural richness of the country's various ethnic groups and promoting inclusiveness in all aspects of society have been implemented. Educational reforms have been introduced to promote understanding and appreciation of different cultures and traditions. Schools and universities are now paying special attention to intercultural education, teaching students about the history, traditions and contributions of different ethnic groups in Uzbekistan. Cultural exchange programs play an important role in developing goodwill between different ethnic communities. Through cultural festivals, art exhibitions, musical performances and other events, Uzbekistan develops intercultural dialogue and cooperation, encourages mutual respect and appreciation.

In new Uzbekistan, the legal framework for protecting the rights of ethnic minorities and preventing discrimination has been strengthened. Anti-discrimination laws and policies have been implemented to protect the rights of all ethnic groups and ensure equal opportunities for all. Involving communities in dialogue and decision-making processes is essential to building trust and understanding between different ethnic groups. The government encourages community participation in local initiatives and projects aimed at promoting social cohesion and unity. Open and constructive communication between different ethnic communities is essential for conflict resolution and long-term relationships. Inter-ethnic communication platforms such as forums, roundtables and public meetings allow people to solve their problems, share experiences and find a common language. Economic development plays a key role in improving inter-ethnic relations. By promoting economic opportunities for all communities, New Uzbekistan aims to reduce socio-economic disparities and strengthen a sense of general well-being among different ethnic groups. indicates the desire to build a perfect and inclusive society. Through a combination of policies, initiatives and public engagement efforts, Uzbekistan is working towards creating a more cohesive and united country where all ethnic groups can thrive and contribute to the country's progress and prosperity.

Conclusion.

In short, the development of inter-ethnic relations in the new Uzbekistan is a sign of the country's desire for unity, diversity, and social cohesion. Through a combination of policies, initiatives and community engagement efforts, Uzbekistan is building a society where differences are celebrated and shared values are embraced. By promoting diversity, fostering mutual understanding and encouraging cooperation among different ethnic groups, Uzbekistan is paving the way for a more inclusive and prosperous future for all its citizens.

References:

1. Imomnazarov M. Milliy ma'naviyatimizning takomil bosqichlari. Toshkent 1996-yil.
2. Abdullayev M. Madaniyatshunoslik. Farg'ona, 1998-yil.
3. Abdullayev M. Abdullayev A. Ma'naviyat va madaniyat tarixi. Farg'ona, 1998-yil.
4. Etnomadaniyatfanidan ma'ruzalar matni. 1-qism. Farg'ona, 2001-yil.
5. Shoniyozov K. O'zbek xalqining shakllanish jarayoni. Toshkent Sharq, 2001-yil.